GENERAL ORDER

ON and after this date, freight on goods conveyed to merchants running on the schedule of the Lightning Express must be pre-paid by shipper, as we understand they are not worth the freight charged, owing to the markets of Chester, Lancaster and Winnsboro, in the State of South Carolina, having been over-stocked by the Lightning Shippers by the Limited Express will pay as before (on delivery), their goods being always worth one hundred cents on the doilar. The people of Fairfield are beginning to open their eyes and see very plainly things "PLAIN FACTS."

TRASH.

That were we forced to sell, in order to collect freight, we could not realize enough

They have been paying fancy prices for shoddy goods "sold regardless of cost." But "every dog has his day," and we all see that the days of the Lightning Express and the Little Wind Engine are nearly numbered. Our neighbor, who has been running his Little Engine with so many different powers in its short career, draws the attention of the community to the character of the

He has first been running "with Brains"—they quickly ran out; then with the 'Almighty Dollar"—they soon played out; then with a mixture of "Brains and Cash," composed of a small remnant of each, and a big amount of wind; then with "Unerring Judgment," that did not work. And his last resort is in acknowledging his Engine run without fire or water. Now what is it run with? The brains were out, and the fire, water and money played out-hence their remains no other motive power known to the world, my worthy friends, but that used by the "Little Engine,"

WIND. The character of this concern is well known. I came among you years ago, to stay. Am I the first man to meet misfortune and be over-come by her: others have gone the same road, and many yet to come will follow. Remember, my windy neighbor, "He who laughs last laughs best." I had but two courses open to me one to bring a lot of worthless trash to this market, rejected by respectable merchants at the North, and sell them as first-class

And try and sell them at fair prices. I chose the latter course. How I failed you all know, but I preferred letting the rich creditor at the North lose money; if such was to be, to injuring my good friends of the South, for the benefit of the rich men at the North. But understand, The Limited is paying toll at all stations, Baltimore included at one hundred cents on the dollar, and doesn't have to pretend to SELL OUT AT COST. And go West to do it, either. Don't you forget it. In conclusion, one word to competitors whose brains are out and judgment played out—don't pump on the ruins of an honest man, who has failed, but honestly so, and crow over his misfortune. Remember the simple old saying, slightly amended to suit

OLD JOE, Who is paying his debts, always intends to pay his debts, make money and spend it right here—not one cent of which goes to Tennessee, except it may be (tell it not in he Synagogue) for a good, fat Tennessee hog.
